Voting Rights Groups Crowding

Overview

In light of recent developments surrounding the proposed Freedom to Vote Act, the John Lewis Voting Rights Act, and potential Electoral Count Act of 1887 reform, the Yale Chief Executive Leadership Institute identified 190 active, independent advocacy organizations working to advance voting rights issues at the national, state, and local levels.

In the pages that follow, a detailed analysis is presented of each group's registration, fundraising, tax and staffing records, which revealed that half (97 of 190) of these organizations were established in the last five years, and of those new groups, more than a quarter (27 of 97) were established in the last year alone. Although the 190 groups in total spent in excess of $300 million in the last year, over half have either budgets of less than $1 million or staffs of less than five full-time individuals.

While the dedication and service of these voting rights advocates are commendable, their sheer number raises urgent questions about whether credible, legitimate expert voices are getting crowded out amid divergent messages.

Nevertheless, CEO commitment towards protecting the right to vote remains as strong as ever with 80% maintaining their halt on corporate donations to "Objectors" in Congress who failed in their duty to confirm the certified 2022 Electoral College vote.

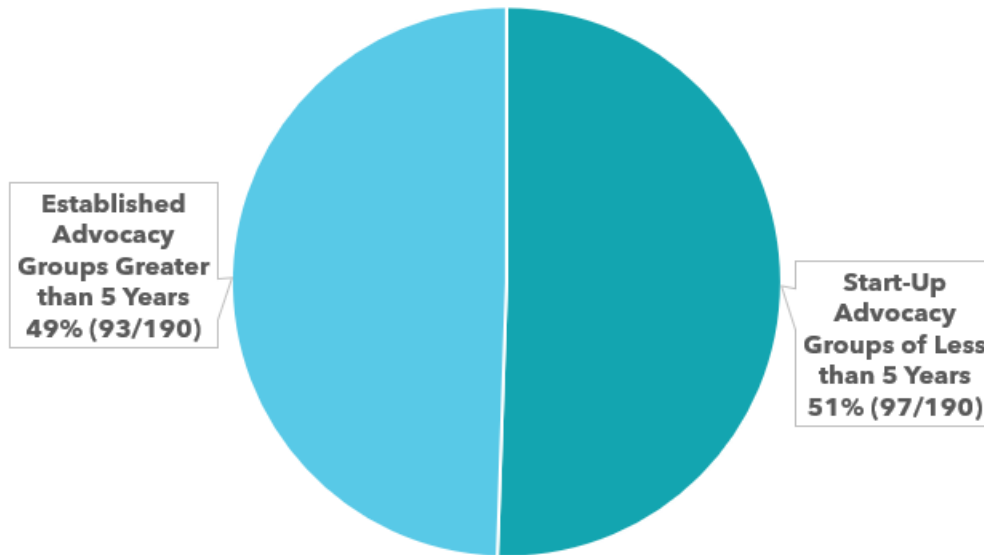

We have heard from many CEOs, government affairs professionals, and policymakers that they, as well as their boards, are confused by competing and often contradictory appeals from dozens of advocacy groups each week. Aggressive fundraising and territorial battles have been cited. Several of these groups reinforce each other but not all, and many direct their considerable resources and firepower toward the same senators and CEOs - neglecting to engage top leaders other key stakeholders such as the clergy, trade unions, pension funds, professional associations, employee forums, campus voices, and institutional investors.

The comprehensive list of 190 current voting rights advocacy groups compiled by the Yale Chief Executive Leadership Institute is incorporated below, followed by listings of all the groups founded after 2016 as well as all the groups founded after 2020. The appendix contains an abbreviated summary of engagement, longevity, staffing, fundraising, and spending for each of the 190 organizations as an accompaniment to this month's CELI Research Insights. Upon request, CELI is happy to provide additional data sets and report details.

Recommendations

According to a recent Morning Consult/Politico survey taken between January 8-9, 37% of all voters support a change to the Senate's filibuster rules, while 27% are undecided and 36% are opposed, which represents a drop-off from the 45% of all voters who supported a change to the Senate's filibuster rules in the Morning Consult/Politico survey taken between June 4-7, 2021. Nevertheless, the same January Morning Consult/Politico survey found that a majority of voters continue to strongly back clarifying succession rules by reforming the Electoral Count Act of 1887, with 55% of voters in support, 25% undecided, and 20% opposed. Clearly the window of opportunity for action has not passed - but it is rapidly closing.

Although many of the 190 organizations describe themselves differently, they are all focused on one or more of five primary priorities: 1) federal legislation - including the Freedom to Vote Act and the John Lewis Voting Rights Act as well as repairing the troubled 1887 Electoral Count Act on presidential succession which is gaining significant bi-partisan support; 2) state level efforts to stop or reverse restrictive voting laws; 3) voter education; 4) voter registration; and 5) voter turnout.

Thus, despite messaging density, the reality is these groups have more in common than divides them. Such talented, devoted advocates could better harness their resources and clarify their voices by considering some options such as those which follow.

First, a consortia of leading voting rights groups might attempt a crisp list of the specific dangers at hand and counterpoints to the arguments of their opponents. In the late 1990s, we moderated a series of forums with leading cancer-fighting organizations as part of the National Dialogue on Cancer, co-chaired by the late President George H.W. Bush and Senator Dianne Feinstein, which forged a clearer consensus of common priorities between conflicting agendas such as basic research, applied research, better informing care providers on state-of-the-art development, improving equal access to quality care, and managing exposure to environmental carcinogens. Much of the shared messaging might endorse and leverage the crisp, point-counterpoint legal explanations of the expert Brennen Center for Justice.

Second, such activists might consider a division of labor to enlist key stakeholder groups. Leaders of the highly engaged Concerned Black Clergy of Greater Atlanta told me in a recent forum that they were disappointed that clergy from other parts of the country had not more actively joined the voting rights movement, despite great latent support within the ranks. Similar outreach to trade unions, college campuses, professional associations, and sports leagues may build the groundswell of support needed to enlist other traditional influencers of social change.

Third, the influential voices of pension funds and institutional investors, who collectively control more than 80 percent of US public equity, would certainly focus the attention of CEOs and leaders across sectors. Their voice as owners have effectively brought attention to other ESG concerns such as climate change responses as well as improved boardroom diversity.

Fourth, some have suggested a peer scoring across activist groups to rate those most credible in the eyes of their peers to merit general support, based upon their efficient operations and effectiveness in delivering results. Of course, this could trigger political tensions, lobbying, reciprocal endorsements, and concerns over the lack of knowledge of each other's operations. The successful, objective third-party non-profit ratings model of ImpactMatters and Charity Navigator might be considered.

Finally, given the convergent goals, financial needs, and even look-alike organizational names, a consolidation of organizations is past due. An orderly process of mergers between overlapping advocacy groups with convergent missions could amplify messages and reduce the inbox confusion of many target audiences. With the impressive, dedicated talent and considerable firepower among those working on voting rights, a more unified approach would fortify the collective action of these fractious groups.

Appendix: Abbreviated Descriptions of Each Voting Rights Advocacy Organization

*please note that some staffing, fundraising and spending numbers reflect approximate estimations based on most recent available information

1. Accountable.US

About: Accountable.US is a nonpartisan watchdog organization that shines a light on corporations and special interests that too often wield unchecked power and influence in Washington and beyond. We conduct investigations and bring attention to our findings to help create an economy that works for everyone, a democracy that functions, and a sustainable environment for future generations. We believe corporations and special interests have too much power and the people have too little. It is our mission to address this imbalance.

4. Advancement Project – Voting Rights

About: Not long ago there were poll taxes and literacy tests, and sheriffs stood outside of polling places preventing Black people from voting. Volunteers registering African Americans to vote were persecuted and even killed. The remnants of these practices remain today, better disguised. Rather than wielding weapons or physically blocking people from voting, state, local, and federal governments are enacting policies and practices to curtail the growing political power of voters of color as they emerge into the new American majority. This is why we fight.

Advancement Project partners with bold, movement- and strategy-minded visionaries and doers to undo this legacy. Our partners are in the forefront of battles to restore voting rights to populations who were overly criminalized and remove barriers to the ballot before Election Day. Importantly, we are also pioneers in the fight to eliminate these wrongs once and for all by establishing a national right to vote. We have been on the front lines of fights for voting rights because access to the ballot gives communities of color power and self-determination in the matters that impact their lives.

5. All Americans Vote

About: All Americans Vote aims to motivate underrepresented Americans to engage in the most patriotic of exercises – voting! If youth and voters of color (the “YVC” electorate) were to match turnout among older non-Hispanic white voters, the electorate would expand by 19 million voters in presidential years and 25 million voters in midterms.

6. All Voting is Local

About: All Voting is Local stands at the forefront of today's civil rights movement. Since 2013, when five justices on the U.S. Supreme Court gutted the Voting Rights Act in Shelby v. Holder, federal, state and local officials have restricted the right to vote. Too often, voters learn about confusing new rules when it's too late – after their right to vote has already been denied. At All Voting is Local, our mission is to remove discriminatory barriers to voting by tackling problems before they silence voters on Election Day.

8. America Votes

About: America Votes is leading comprehensive efforts to expand voters' access to the ballot box, ensuring America's elections truly represent the diversity of voices across the country and not the willpower of partisan dominance.

In the aftermath of the 2016 election and a presidential campaign and administration intent on delegitimizing the nation's democracy, the work of America Votes is more important than ever.

9. American Constitution Society

About: The American Constitution Society realizes the promises of the U.S. Constitution by building and leading a diverse legal community that dedicates itself to advancing and defending democracy, justice, equality, and liberty; to securing a government that serves the public interest; and to guarding against the abuse of law and the concentration of power.

Our Mission: ACS believes that the Constitution is "of the people, by the people, and for the people." We interpret the Constitution based on its text and against the backdrop of history and lived experience. Through a diverse nationwide network of progressive lawyers, law students, judges, scholars and many others, we work to uphold the Constitution in the 21st Century by ensuring that law is a force for protecting our democracy and the public interest and for improving people's lives.

12. Battle Born Collective

About: Battle Born Collective was founded in 2021 by Rebecca Kirsznar Katz and Adam Jentleson, veterans of political campaigns, progressive advocacy, and the U.S. Senate. We helped found and lead former Senate Majority Leader Harry Reid's war room, winning tough battles from defeating President George W. Bush's attempt to privatize Social Security to forcing the GOP to surrender the 2013 government shutdown with no concessions. Battle Born Collective was established to leverage the strategies we learned from Senator Reid in his war room — a combination of rapid response and insider savvy to be successful in the face of today's challenges: steering progressive policy goals through Congress while fighting Mitch McConnell.

14. Black Male Voter Project

About: The history of the United States is a story about the disenfranchisement of millions based on their Blackness. More than a hundred years of violent voter suppression, poll taxes, literacy tests, and gerrymandering have created a climate that is nothing shy of hostile towards Black men that choose to stand up and be a part of the electoral process. Even if that is being just a casual voter. So if the opposition knows how to suppress the participation of Black men, then our only response must be to support a campaign that reverses these ideas. The issue of low Black male voter participation can be addressed by dedicating oneself to reversing these neo-colonial ideas.

15. Black Voters Matter Fund

About: This week, dozens of local and national advocacy organizations will lead voting rights actions across the U.S. as part of a national campaign urging President Biden and the Senate to pass voting rights legislation before the year's end. Actions began on Monday, December 6, with a hunger strike by 20 students affiliated with Un-PAC Arizona and will culminate on Thursday, December 9 with coordinated direct actions, where some protesters will risk arrest, coinciding with President Biden's Global Democracy Summit.

About: Over 240 companies of all sizes and sectors from every corner of the country came together this summer to call on Congress to pass the John Lewis Voting Rights Advancement Act (VRAA) because we — Business for Voting Rights — believe that all eligible Americans should be able to freely, fairly, and safely exercise their right to vote, regardless of their race or ethnicity. Unfortunately, the Senate decided today that they will not debate the VRAA, which would reauthorize key provisions of the Voting Rights Act despite a long legacy of bipartisan support for that historic law.

About: Faithful Democracy is a growing national coalition of diverse congregations, faith-based organizations and religious leaders with a shared concern about the state of our democracy in the 21st Century. We recognize the need to reform our foundational democratic systems to align more closely with the ideals of a beloved community in which all members belong and contribute. Any major movement dedicated to comprehensive reform—from care of creation to civil rights and debt relief for poor countries—has included the unique voice and perspective of people of faith. Our network of faith-based partners join voices around the need for transformational democracy reform.

68. Fix Our Senate

About: The majority of Americans want President Biden and Congress to get us out of this pandemic, protect voting rights and our democracy, and make progress on the countless other challenges facing our nation.

Yet, with every minute that ticks by, Sen. Mitch McConnell and his Republican minority in the Senate — who represent nearly 42 million fewer Americans than the Senate Democratic Majority does — can abuse the filibuster to obstruct the will of the people time and time again and prevent popular bills from even getting an up or down vote. We are a coalition of more than 70 organizations (and counting) representing millions of Americans fighting to eliminate the filibuster and fix the Senate so our elected officials can finally start delivering on their promises.

71. Free Speech for People

About: Free Speech For People and Our Revolution announce a national campaign to ensure state election officials abide by Section 3 of the 14th Amendment of the U.S. Constitution disqualifying insurrectionists such as former President Donald Trump from running for future public office. Enacted in the wake of the Civil War, Section 3 of the 14th Amendment disqualifies from public office any individual who has taken an oath to uphold the U.S. Constitution and then engages in insurrection or rebellion against the United States, or gives aid or comfort to those who have. President Trump's incitement of the violent insurrection on January 6th, which claimed the lives of five people and injured more than 140 officers, disqualifies him from holding future public office under this constitutional provision. This provision would also apply to other elected officials who gave support to the insurrectionists. According to a report released in November by Rolling Stone, this would implicate certain Members of Congress, including: Representatives Marjorie Taylor Greene of Georgia, Lauren Boebert of Colorado, Mo Brooks of Alabama, Paul Gosar and Andy Biggs of Arizona, Madison Cawthorn of North Carolina, and Louie Gohmert of Texas.

We're fighting back. People like you are leading local Indivisible groups in every single state. Be part of history—join the Indivisible movement.

Update: Majority Leader Schumer announced he will initiate a vote on rules reform to pass democracy legislation on January 17. Call your Senators now and demand they fix the filibuster to pass the Freedom to Vote Act and the John Lewis Voting Rights Act when it comes to the floor. Senate Republicans have repeatedly used the filibuster this Congress to block significant structural democracy reforms from passage, despite the fact that Republicans are in the minority in the Senate. This critical democracy reform is widely popular among both Democratic and Republican voters and would expand early voting, end partisan gerrymandering, reduce the influence of big money in politics, and more. This all comes as Republican state legislatures across the country are passing hundreds of sweeping voter suppression laws that all but assure GOP electoral victories for years to come.

About: Issue One is the leading crosspartisan political reform group in Washington, D.C. We unite Republicans, Democrats, and independents in the movement to strengthen American democracy. Our mission is more critical than ever: Our democratic republic is under greater stress than it has been in generations, as the fates of democracies all over the world face uncertain futures.

Issue One is fighting to protect U.S. elections, lessen political polarization, limit the influence of big money over politics, and improve the ability of Congress to solve problems.

No major political reform has passed Congress without support from both political parties in the past 70 years. That's why we work in a crosspartisan manner — inside and outside of Congress — on all of our priorities.

83. Keep Our Republic

About: At the Constitutional Convention in Philadelphia in 1787, Ben Franklin was asked by passersby about what kind of political system we would have and he reportedly replied: "A Republic, if you can keep it."

We pledge to keep it.

Therefore, we rededicate ourselves to uphold the following basic principles, and we call on our fellow citizens to do the same:

Let every eligible voter vote.

Let every vote be counted.

Let the electoral count stand.

Respect the voice of the people in each state as expressed in the popular vote.

Keep Our Republic is a non-partisan civic action organization dedicated to protecting a republic of laws and strengthening the checks and balances of our democratic system.

We aim to discover, highlight and help to prevent an array of extraordinary threats to American democracy, strengthen democratic guardrails, and educate the public before it is too late. Our civic creed is: Let all citizens vote. Let all votes be counted. Let the count stand.

We are particularly concerned about the uncertainty and chaos around the certification of electors, a contested election, the vast secret emergency powers held by the president, and other unconventional threats.

About: To commemorate the 56th anniversary of the signing of the Voting Rights Act of 1965, the Lawyers' Committee for Civil Rights Under Law and The CW Network have partnered to launch a new, non-partisan effort to ensure voting rights for all citizens. We know that encouraging people to vote is meaningless if their right and freedom to vote is undermined on a daily basis. Some falsely believe that voter suppression efforts are simply about politics and are not discriminatory. These beliefs are dangerous and run counter to a true democracy. Yet, so many messaging efforts stop at voter awareness and do not go all the way to embrace voter protection. Even otherwise, savvy media sources often attribute the wave of voter suppression efforts to a Democrat vs. Republican battle when the right to vote is a non-partisan issue. In contrast, the actual impact on Black voters is barely mentioned.

About: Our Catholic faith teaches that we have a responsibility to participate in politics out of a concern for, and commitment to, the good of the community. This responsibility to participate means each person also has a fundamental right to participate, and must be equipped with the resources to do so with confidence.

Our legislators cannot decide that some are not worthy of participating in democracy. All citizens, regardless of race, ethnicity, sex, religion, ability, class, or national origin are entitled to equal protection of the right to vote. However, when states enact burdensome or restrictive voter requirements or redraw districts unjustly, not all people are able to participate equally. Only when all have an equal voice at the table will the common good be realized, and we will be a nation “of the people, by the people, and for the people.”

108. Open Democracy

About: Our organization might be small, but our reputation in NH is one that we fight for ALL the voters and citizens of the Granite State. Whether it's fair voting districts, ending the grip that special interest money has on our politicians, or making sure lobbyists don't have a louder voice than you, Open Democracy is here for an Equal Voice for All. Thanks for supporting our mission.

109. Our Community Votes

About: Our Community Votes is a 501(c)(4) dedicated to increasing the volume and number of voices coming from disadvantaged and marginalized communities within the political system. Our work is focused on three main areas: protecting voter rights, expanding access to politics and making every voice heard. For more than a decade, Our Community Votes (OCV) has organized across the country to protect voting rights, expand all citizens' access to their elected officials and bring new voices into the political conversation. We believe the work of creating change starts at the ballot box and strengthens our communities. OCV is going to be present across the country next year.

110. Our Count Voter Justice

About: We have everything we need to offer a decent quality of life to every single person in this country. Yet Black people are suffering and dying needlessly because there are decision makers in our government who don't care about us. In order to permanently change the conditions we're protesting, we must shift who gets to make decisions in our society. That means we must claim our power as citizens, including as voters and as potential candidates for office.

OurCount is about ending generations of voter suppression policies by combining our protests with determined efforts to help as many people overcome unnecessary barriers to voting so we can (re-)elect leaders willing to rewrite unjust laws and pass better ones that make it easier for all of us to vote and live freely.

123. Progress Arizona – End the Filibuster

About: When we elected Democrats to the majority in D.C. in 2020, we voted in favor of the popular legislation on their agenda—and we expect them to deliver. But, Democrats’ promises: protections for voting rights, labor rights, immigration reform, and climate solutions are likely to fail due to an arcane, procedural rule in the Senate.

Now, Sen. Kyrsten Sinema is allowing Republicans to block all of the popular policies that will address the problems we face as a country.

The filibuster is a tool that Republicans can and will use to block protections for voting rights, labor rights, immigration reform, climate solutions and more. It requires 60 votes in the Senate to pass most major legislation, despite the fact that Democrats have a 51 vote majority with VP Harris’s tie-breaking vote. It’s time we abolish it.

About: Stand Up America's goal is simple: to demand the democracy we deserve. A democracy for the people, by the people. All of the people. Our organization was born in 2016 as a digital-first grassroots community working to resist Donald Trump's corruption, racism, and his threats to our democracy. But we know that Trump is a symptom of what's broken in our political system, not the root cause. Today, we're working to build a truly representative democracy by expanding voting rights, reducing the impact of big money in our elections, and breaking down structural barriers that conservatives have built to stop progress. We envision a democracy where every American, regardless of where they live, what they look like, how they identify, or how much money they have, has representation in government. Our community is made up of over two million Americans across all 50 states. To date, we have driven more than 1.6 million constituent calls to lawmakers and contacted tens of millions of our fellow voters to help them take action to strengthen our democracy. We know that American democracy is rooted in a history of systemic racism, classism, and sexism, which continues to this day. To make meaningful progress on countless issues, from health care to climate change, we are committed to reforming a political system that has silenced millions of Americans for far too long.

We want to buy from, work for and invest in companies that respect the environment, treat their workers well and respect democracy. And we're not afraid to hold them to account when they don't.

Barely a day goes by without a fresh corporate scandal making headlines. From polluting the environment to dodging taxes – when left unchecked, corporations don't let anything stand in the way of bigger profits.

In an age of multinational companies that are bigger and richer than some countries, it can be easy to feel powerless. But there is a chink in their armour. The biggest corporations in the world rely on ordinary people to keep them in business. We are their customers, their employees, and often their investors. When we act together, we can be more powerful than they are. Together, our community of millions act as a global consumer watchdog – running and winning campaigns to hold the biggest companies in the world accountable.

dignity and justice, and without fear. TCRP believes that legal advocacy and litigation are critical tools to protect and advance the civil rights of everyone in Texas, particularly our State's most vulnerable populations, and to effect positive and lasting change to law and policy. We believe that by serving the rising social justice movement in Texas with excellent legal representation and bold strategies, we can respond to the needs of the communities we serve.

154. Texas Right To Vote

About: We are community leaders, elected representatives, grassroots organizers, and election administrators coordinating together to defend the voting rights of all Texas voters during this high-stakes election. For decades, career politicians have manipulated election rules in our state to make voting more difficult for seniors, voters with disabilities, young voters, people of color, low-income voters, and many more. Texas Right to Vote is dedicated to speaking to all eligible voters navigating the voting process and to guarantee access to the ballot box is not hindered by anyone in Texas or in Washington.

159. The Brennan Center for Justice - Ensure Every American Can Vote

About: Voting is the most basic right in our democracy, but too many people are locked out of the process. The Brennan Center has developed bold solutions to ensure that every eligible American can cast a ballot. American elections are marred by an infrastructure that is rickety, excludes too many, and is prone to partisan manipulation and deliberate voter suppression that often targets communities of color and young people. We work to make voting free, fair, and easy. The Brennan Center's reforms are modernizing American elections, starting with automatic voter registration and measures to ensure election security. And we fight restrictive voting policies that make it harder to vote.

172. The Right to Vote Initiative of Advancement Project's Power and Democracy Program

About: The Right to Vote Initiative of Advancement Project's Power and Democracy Program is building a next-generation, pro-democracy movement at the grassroots level to shore up the foundation of our democracy: the fundamental right to political participation for all. By organizing to defend and strengthen the fundamental right to vote – through constitutional amendments, legislation or litigation at the federal and state levels – the Right to Vote Initiative seeks to ensure access to the ballot and to stimulate voter participation by re-imagining the rights of voters and the meaning of American democracy itself. Surprisingly, our federal constitution does not contain explicit language affirming the fundamental right to vote. Indeed, former President Barack Obama, as a constitutional law professor at the University of Chicago, began each of his classes with the startling fact that our Constitution does not provide “a fundamental individual ‘right to vote.’”

The Right to Vote Initiative is housed at Advancement Project, a next generation, multi-racial civil rights organization. Rooted in the great human rights struggles for equality and justice, we exist to fulfill America's promise of a caring, inclusive and just democracy. We use innovative tools and strategies to strengthen social movements and achieve high impact policy change. For more information, visit advancementproject.org.
